After deliberating for one hour Tuesday morning, the jury in the case of Richard H. DeTreville, on trial for embezzlement in declaring unearned dividends in the Acme Mills & Elevator Company's manage-He had been in poor health lately, ment, brought in a verdict of guilty

The following were the jurors: W. M. Jordan, foreman; J. B. Haddock, Otho Robinson, Volney West, Albert McReynolds, James Dickersen, C. C. McElroy, Bill Ray, Walter Tresch, Sterling Langley, James Johnson and D. I. West.

The jury was polled and all answered that it was their verdict. It is said that the entire jury agreed on the first ballot that the verdict should be guilty, but there was some difference of opinion as to the length of the sentence.

Mr. DeTreville received the verdict with composure. He was taken to jail, where the law requires that he must remain pending any motions for a new trial, or during an appeal, which will no doubt be taken if a motion for a new trial is overruled character of much of the testimony made the proceedings uninteresting and the attendance was not large. There were several indictments and one of them, tried on a different count, at the last court resulted in a mistrial, one juror hanging the Speeches were made for the defense by Hon. Herman Southall, Cook and for the prosecution by Mr. S. Y. Trimble and Commonwealth's Attorney Smith, the arguments taking up the entire day Monday.

During the closing speech by Mr. Smith, Mrs. DeTreville, who sat by her husband's side, fainted and fell from her chair and had to be taken from the court room.

Mr. DeTreville, who was president of the defunct mill company for seven years preceding 1909 was owner of a large block of stock voted him by the directors when the company was reorganized and its capital stock-largely increased in 1904. He is charged with declaring a dividend in December, 1908, on borrowed money which, the last of several dividends, exhausted the mill's ability to horrow and the following May disclosed the fact that lts affairs were hopelessly involved and that the mill owed over $200,000. The stockholders tried to save the plant and Mr. R. H. Holland was put at the head and made some money that summer and by securing concessions from creditors the mill was bonded! for $190,000, the stockholders buying the bonds to the extent of half their holdings. In 1910 interest could not be paid and the collapse came. The bond-holders bought the mill in at about $60,000 and the $250,000 plant stands ldle, the entire stock and 60 per cent. of the bond holders' money

Indictments were returned on several counts against R. H. DeTreville, President, and J. B. Galbreath, Secretary. The indictments were found jointly but separate trials were demanded.

AMUSEMENTS

According to the exchanges of other nearby cities, "The Stampede" to be presented at Holland's Opera House to night is perhaps the masterpiece of one of America's youngest and most talented playwrights, Cecil B. De Mille, who has to his credit such notable plays as "The Return of Peter Grim" in which David Warfield is appearing this season, "Strongheart" which brought fame and fortune to Robert Edson, Nat Goodwin's success of a few seasons ago, "The Genius" and several other well known plays.

"The Stampede" is not a wild Western melodrama, but a fitting companion to "The Squawman", "The Virginian", and other similar plays that have delighted thousands in past seasons. It has been mount ed with a massive and complete scenle production with every little attention to detail and lighting effeets usually given a Belasco production.

NOT ROMANTIC BUT SAVING

Men Do Not Call Taxicabs Until They Know Women's Tollet Is Nearly Completed.

"I'm just pinning in my braid," said the young woman who had been called to the telephone. "Oh, about twenty minutes, I guess."

"That is a trick," she said, "that came in with taxieabs. A man going anywhere with a woman in an oldfashioned cab would have squandered half a week's salary before he would telephone to her about the stage of her toilet. But with taxicabs it is different. They eat up money faster than the old cabs, and it is nothing unusual now for an escort to ask how much longer it will take to get ready. Within fifteen or twenty minutes of the time set he calls a taxicab and gets here just as you are going downstairs. Not very romantic, no; but it is sensible and saves money to get married on."

"5098 John!" Mildred's tones went swiftly toward central.

"Hello! Is that you Rex? Yes; Rex-our table at the Tower has been removed so I will be at the one in the second alcove. And Rex, do you mind if I make it one-thirty instead of one? I am in an awful harry this morning, so goodby! Oh -Rex," Mildred's tone had assumed a coaxing note, "I have on my lavender frock today. Goodby!"

The girl hung up the receiver hurriedly, then glanced at her neat little lavender clad figure in the long mirror and smiled. The finishing touch would be the few well chosen flowers she knew her brother would bring to her. Rex was unusual for a brother and insisted on these little extravagances for his sister.

Mildred reached up for the fluffy lavender chiffon that floated over her hat and let it drop down across her face. Thus, with a wonderfully beautiful face partially concealed Mildred made her way to the shopping districts.

The shops were attractive and when Mildred finally dragged herself away it was to find that she would be perhaps ten minutes late for luncheon with her brother.

"Brothers are easily pacified," thought Mildred as she swung through the door of the Tower.

She stood for a moment while her glance played full upon the group of men standing about the entrance hall. Covert, open and swift admiration jumped into many a pair of eves as she stood there apparently unconscious of the picture she presented; the soft mist of her chiffon veil only added a subtle touch to her beauty.

"The one in the corner," was Mildred's inward decision, "is very good looking."

As she passed on into the smaller luncheon room she threw a hurried glance at the man in the corner who had half risen at her entrance.

Without another glance Mildred went to her table.

Rex had arrived but had vanished; the fact of his having been there was evidenced in an exquisite corsage bonquet which lay on the table in he alcove.

"Rex is extravagant today," murmured Mildred, picking up the flowers preparatory to pinning them on "Three beautiful orchids and my favorite-lily of the valley." She sniffed at them and pinned them in to have a smoke-since I was so late," she mused and glanced through

She looked a little musical lilt in her voice. desperately around for Rex.

"You-like the flowers?" The man opposite had spoken the fateful words.

An icy chill swept over Mildred, leaving her strangely helpless.

She had assumed that the flowers were hers-that the table was hers! Instead of that she had stepped into one of those terrible intrigues. that she had answered some personal in the newspapers.

Because, in her discomfiture, she had not found her voice, Mildred unpinned the flowers from her dress and put them on the table.

"Do you care for a green salad before or after the joint, Miss Holland?" he asked.

The long flower pin which Mildred held in her fingers snapped, so sud len was the sound of her name. "1-1-prefer it after," she found herself answering. He went back to the menu and after giving the order for luncheon he dismissed the waiter and looked across at Mildred.

Despite her anger and her desire to petrify him with a glance, Mildred lost all control of her expression and realized with inward horror that she was smiling in a shy and exceedingly foolish fashion.

"Won't you please put the flowers" -where they were?"

Again Mildred found herself obeying him but she felt that her voice would return presently and that she would give this very handsome man opposite her a few well-toned words.

For several days bands of horsemen have been reconnoitering in the vicinity of Italian outposts. Several times at night they have been discovered by the searchlights of the warships and then shells drove them back again into the hills.

About one o'clock this morning a force of ahout 3,000 Turkish troops with field guns was discovered advancing in two columns with the evident intention of recapturing the town. A large body of natives marched with the troops and presented an admirable array. The Italian commander, however, had an intlmation that such an attempt probably would be made and his men were amply prepared.

The Italian guns were well placed add the Turks were met with a heavy artillery and rifle fire to which they replied with equal energy.

POWER OF RICHES IS SMALL

They Cannot Givs Beauty, Strength of Health to Possessor, or Prolong Life.

The more experience we have of tle world the more that experience sound show us how little is in the power of riches; for what, indeed, truly desirable can they bestow upon us? Can they give beauty to the deformed, strength to the weak or health to the infirm? Surely if they could we should not see so many illfavored faces haunting the assemblies of the great, nor would such numbers of feeble wretches languish in their coaches and palaces. Can they prolong their own possession, or lengthen his days who enjoys them? So far otherwise, that the sloth, the hixury, the care which attend them shorten the lives of millions and bring them with pain and misery to an untimely grave.

Where, then, is their value, if they can neither embellish nor strengthen our forms, sweeten nor prolong our lives? Again, can they adorn the mind more than the body? Do they not rather swell the heart with vanity, puff up the cheeks with pride, shut our ears to every call of virtue and our bowels to every motive of compassion.

BROKE IT TO HIM GENTLY

How the Head of Firm Learned His Cashler Had Absconded With the Money.

The cashier of a certain firm had absconded, and the head clerk was decided upon as being the proper person to acquaint the head of the firm of the fact on his arrival.

There had been a dog fight in the street and a small crowd was just dispersing when the chief's carriage dashed up.

"What's the crowd after, Jorkins?" demanded the head of the "Jorkins, are you mad?" "No. sir. That is, sir, I don't now, sir. Fact is, sir, all the cash is gone, and-and-" "Well?"

"The cashier's gone with it, sir."

DARK SMOKE.

Funny thing about smoking! If man were compelled to puff a good eigar with his eyes shut the operation would lose its zest. A man who had undergone a slight operation ipon one of his eyes had to stay in a darkened room for a week with his optics bandaged. After a few days his doctor told him he could smoke if he liked. He jumped at the chance, and, to his amazement, found it afforded him not the slightest pleasure.

To be sure, men often smoke in the dark; but there is always the rosy glow of the lighted end to be seen and the faint outline of the cloud of smoke in the air. There is no more fun in the sightless smoke than in a saltless egg or a kiss implanted upon your own hand. What is the psychology of it?

BLIND STENOGRAPHER.

Maurice J. Myers, a blind stenographer, reported all the discussions at the conference on the treatment of the blind held last month at Exeter. Mr. Myers' notes, which were recorded on a narrow strip of paper, extended to a length of 21/4 miles, and contained approximately 800, 000 dots. This elever shorthand writer, who can take notes at a speed of 158 words a minute, helped to formulate "the Birmingham system of embossed shorthand." He was trained at the Birmingham Royal Institution for the Blind .- Jewish Chroniele.

AMERICAN ARISTOCRACY.

"You have no aristocracy in America!" said the distinguished foreigner.

"You wrong us," replied Dustin Stax. "We have done remarkably well in that respect."

"And what is your idea of a true gentleman?"

"One who is eligible to the benefits of a gentlemen's agreement."

Credit Man Tells of Experience That Has Made Him More Optimistio With Bills.

"Here's one for you," said the hotel cashier to the credit man, handing him a bill. "Now, let's sec you get that."

"That fellow's quite all right," replied the credit man. "I know because of an experience I had with him once. One of his checks came to me from the bank marked 'no funds.' I called him in and proceeded to rip him up the back. He listened until I had said my say.

"'Now,' he returned, 'I am going to make you apologize. I am going to prove to you that I have funds in that bank.' I was dubious and he called up the bank and had some conversation with the cashier. Then he told me to call up the cashier myself. The man at the other end of the wire was on his hands and knees. He explained that the other had been keeping two accounts with $4 them, one marked 'special.' A deposit had been made in his name, but through inadvertence it had been credited to the personal account instead of the 'special.' The check had been drawn on the latter account. That is the only case I have known where a bank made such an error, but since that experience I have learned to approach every account with optimism, and you would be surprised how much it helps in the collection of bills."

THUGS WORKED IN RIVER.

A curious form of crime has just been brought to light in Delhi. A gang of bad characters have been making a practice of hiding in the river Jumna and pulling down into the water boys and women wearing gold and silver jewelry who go to the river to bathe. Recently several boys and women disappeared, and their bodies have not been recovered. A few days ago a Marwari woman, bathing was suddenly caught by somebody from below the water. She raised a cry, and two of her companions caught hold of her and prevented her from being dragged down. Help arrived and a Mohammedan was caught in the water. He was arrested. Lately on one day five boys similarly disappeared; two were the sons of city jewclers.

THIS BRIDEGROOM SAT DOWN

Didn't See Why He Should Stand While the Bride Plighted Her Troth at the Aitar.

They strolled into the parsonage of a suhurhan town in New Jersey and asked to get married. They were from back in the country and hoth seemed anxious to get the ceremony over and done with and get back to their work. Thrifty young people of German blood, they were, with no time to waste on foolishness.

The minister called in his wife and servant to witness the ceremony and proceeded promptly. He had the couple stand hefore him, asked the usual preliminary questions, and then got from the hridegroom the pledge that tied him for life to the hride.

He had just started with "Do you take this man." when he was astonished to see the bridegroom walk over to a sofa and calmly sit down.

"What do you mean hy that?" asked the minister. "Don't you want to finish the ceremony?"

"Sure," said the bridegroom. "But you're through with me. I've said my part, and I'll sit here until she says I'm tired.

"You'll come back here and stand up until it is over," said the parson in some beat. The man got up and came hack.

His hride had not minded his action in the least. After they had gone the minister spoke his mind:

"The woman is going to get the worst of that matrimonial bargain." And for once his wife agreed with Universal Law of Nature for All Species is the Survival of the Fittest.

"In a community of foxes the most cunning fox would survive; in a pack of wolves the willest and strongest wolf; while in a community of ants. those that had the least power of intelligent co-operation would be the first to become extinct. And it is equally ohvious that the interpretation of the world selection must vary in every grade of life, with every rise in intelligence-intelligence being, in normal circumstances, the prime factor which determines selection. Our garden roses would soon degenerate were not the sclective intelligence of the gardener brought into play. Hence, intelligence whether self-determining or hrought into play from without, is ohviously one of the conditions which dctermine fitness. But there are even higher determining conditions than intelligence, for intelligence alone may manifest itself in mere cunning. The qualities of prudence, temperance, fidelity, sympathy, co-operation, selfsacrifice for a common good-all these are amongst the determining conditions of fitness, for a people that has these qualities will always he able to hold its own against an imprudent, intemperate, unfaithful, unsympahetic and seifish people."—Ramsden Balmforth.

Friendship.

Some one once asked Kingsley what was the secret of his strong, joyous life, and he answered: "I had a friend." If every evil man is a center of contagion, every good man is a center of healing. He provides an environment in which others can see God. Goodness creates an atmosphere for other souls to he good. It is a priestly garment that has virtue even for the finger that touches it. The earth has sweet souls and winsome fives, and Christ-like characters to be found in it. The choice of friends is, therefore, one of the most serious affairs in life, just hecauso a man becomes moided into the likeness of what he loves in his friend.-Hugh Black.

TRADITION PROVED TRUE.

There is an old Devonshire tradition to the effect that if the milk of a cow which has been bitten by . snake is allowed to stand, the form of a snake will appear in the cream. News has come to hand that five persons who live at Goldburn, near Okehampton, affirm that they have seen this strange sight. The cow in this case belongs to Mrs. Heale of Goldburn, and it was bitten by a viper a few days ago. Tho cow was milked. and the milk was about to be flung away when the servant girl interposed, and, speaking from previous experience, said, "Let it stand, because if the cow has been bitten by a snake it will show up in the milk." The milk was necordingly set aside, and on looking at it some three hours afterward the form of a snake was distinctly seen in the cream. There was an exact model of the reptile, the head, the eyes, and the tonguo projecting from the mouthperfect throughout to the tail.

CHINA IN TRANSITION.

A commonplace idea is that China is passing through a period of transition. To what goal that process may ultimately conduct her no wise man will venture to predict. But while the process lasts the equilibrium of this vast and ancient empire seems to be peculiarly unstable. A very slight cause might overset it, and the consequences of such an overturn to the peace of the world would almost certainly be of an exceedingly serious kind. . . . ELKS' HOME LOCATED

Lot on Corner Ninth and Water Is Finally Selected.

CONTRACT TO FORBES CO.

Financial Arrangements Have Been Made and Work to Begin at Once.

At an enthusiastic meeting held by the Elks Tuesday night the final report of the Building Committee was submitted and adopted by a rising vote, with hardly a dissenting vote.

The committee reported that it had an option on the lot known as the Gish property, had devoted much time and work to the preparation of plans and had received bids and was prepared to recommend the plans and let the contract if the Lodge approved. Moreover the financial arrangements had about been concluded and there appeared no obstacle in the way of proceeding at once to the erection of the house. The report was adopted and the committee was authorized to pro cecd. All necessary steps will be taken without a moment's delay and the new Home will be completed by Feb. 1, 1912.

The contract has been let to the Forbes Manufacturing Co. for $15,-800, to which must be added the heating plant, electric fixtures and the furnishings. The entire cost is estimated at $21,000 and the lot $6,500, making the Home cost $27, 500. The Lodge has $7,500 on hand, the members have agreed to take about the same amount in second morigage bonds and the rest will be borrowed on first mortgage bonds. The debt will be rapidly retired.

The lodge lost heavily by the fire last March, and now that a new Home is to be built, a modern and up-to-date building, there is general rejoicing among the 275 members of this prosperous order.

hardwood finishings. There will be a commodious basement under most of the building and a broad veranda in front.

The frame residence now on the lot is for sale and will be removed as quickly as possible and work begun as soon as the lot is cleared. The Home will be closed for four months and reopened in the new quarters, it is planned, on the lodge's anniversary, Feb. 14th.

The meeting Tuesday night partook largely of the nature of a "love feast." There had been differences of opinion as to location and on other questions, but all differences have apparently disappeared and the members are pulling together for the new Home. Speeches were made by many members, all in the same spirit of harmony and good fellowship.

That the "swift and racy" musical play is a thing of the past has been thoroughly demonstrated by the unparalleled record of "The Red Mill", which, for over one entire year, held the stage of the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York City, and was only withdrawn on account of an overworked company.
